There is no other show than to let the two factions of the Republican party in Pennsylvania cut each other's throats. Don Cameron nor Chairman Cooper will agree to a new convention, and the Mitchell faction will not support the Cameron ticket. Unless all signs should fail both tickets will go down together.

There comes from Washington a report that Congress will appropriate no more money for sending men in search of the North Pole, and in the search find nothing but suffering and death. Let those who want to earn fame or meet death in that way, appeal to private capital, but let the government have nothing more to do with such dangerous and useless enterprises. If Bennett wants to spend some of his fortune in fitting out another Jeannette and can find men foolhardy enough to risk their lives in the attempt to discover the North Pole, no one will object, but Congress should take no responsibility in the matter. The sacrifice of life has already been too great in these expeditions, and it is time that these scientific dreamers would wake up.

Mr. Raskin had a little painting which Meissner executed some time ago, and when bought by the art critic was not considered of remarkable value. It is a picture of Napoleon in the Campaign of Paris, wearing his familiar gray overcoat and mounted on his great white charger. The picture is only 9 by 12 inches, but it is a masterpiece. Mr. Raskin bought it fourteen years ago for $5,000, and recently he had occasion to sell it that he might buy what he needed more than a Meissner painting, and a picture dealer in Paris gave him 5,500 guineas for it, or about $29,000. When the great French artist painted this Napoleon his fame had not gone abroad as it is now, although he was the greatest master of the brush living. But his pictures have vastly appreciated in value, and every little picture he paints, and all his pictures are little, will demand from $10,000 to $60,000.

No citizen of Wisconsin who has filled a position abroad, was ever honored with more marked attention than General Lucius Fairchild. From the time he first went to Liverpool as United States Consul, to the time he resigned the position of American Minister at the court of Spain, he was entertained in a princely manner by the representative men of England, France and Spain. When he was about to set sail from Liverpool for home during the first week in the present month he was entertained at a public dinner. The banquet was given by the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, and Barkerhead, the United States Consul and Vice-Consul at Liverpool, Stephen Williamson, Esq., M. P., and the Hon. Messrs. W. H. Hunt and Alphonso Taft, United States Ministers to Russia and Austria. General Fairchild was presented with a handsomely bound illuminated address of welcome and farewell, by the Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Fairchild was afterward the recipient of an elegant silver flower-service.

Last year there were more boys killed from the use of toy pistols than there were lives lost in the great cyclone which swept through Iowa last week. The fatalities were so numerous and occurred in such rapid succession about the 4th of July, that public attention was attracted to the necessity of taking some legal steps to prevent such a wholesale slaughter of young humanity. In this State, a law was enacted last winter which provides that it shall be unlawful for any person to sell or use, or to have in his possession, for the purpose of exposing for sale or use, any toy pistol, toy revolver, or other toy firearm; and that any person violating any of the provisions of the law, on conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail, not exceeding six months, or by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. The law should be heeded not simply that the penalties may be escaped, but that the destruction of life or last summer may not be repeated.

A set of misguided people called on the President on Thursday and asked that a reprieve be granted in the case of Guitau, in order that a scientific commission might be formed and the insanity of the baseless wretch thoroughly investigated. It is said that the President heard the plea of these would-be humanitarians with patience, and assured them that the matter would be considered. For decency sake it is about time all effort to save the worthless neck of Guitau should cease. The blasphemous and murderous assassin ought to hang. These sickly sentimentalists and false humanitarians are making a hero of Guitau because he had the courage to murder a President. By their conduct they insult the dead Garfield and make a mockery of justice. According to the programme, the assassin has one week more to live, and let the decree of the court be carefully observed. It is not probable that President Arthur will grant a reprieve. He could not do it without seeming to express sympathy for the wretch who, through a morbid craving for notoriety, deliberately murdered the President of the United States.

MADDENED WINDS.

Iowa Again Visited by a Furious and Destructive Storm.

CEAR RAPIDS, IOWA, June 22.—A fearful hurricane is reported in Blackhawk and Buchanan counties to-night, the most serious results, as far as heard from, being at Independence, thirty-nine miles north of here. Every telegraph line leading to this city, save one from here to Chicago, is down, and no later news is obtainable than reports of passengers who were on the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern train at Independence just after the storm passed.

At 4:30 o'clock this evening it grew ominously dark ten miles north of Independence, so that lamps were used in houses and on the cars, and it was impossible to see a car-length ahead of the train.

At Independence the wind force was most furious, demolishing a number of houses, blowing down the smoke-stack of the Insane Asylum, and causing great destruction at Sells' Circus, blowing down the tent, the pole killing three.

The storm was seen several minutes before it struck the city, and the people were quite well prepared to protect themselves by going into their cellars.

School buildings were unroofed, lumber piles were scattered, trees were blown up by the roots in some instances, and much other damage done that could not be particularized by the passengers.

It was not a whirling tornado at Independence, but a straight windstorm.

At Waterloo the top of the Illinois Central railway bridge was blown away, and other damages reported.

At this place the storm struck about 6 o'clock, the wind blowing a gale, unroofing some buildings and breaking down a good many trees, signs, etc. The wind was followed by a heavy rain. People quite generally sought places of safety, fearing a repetition of the Grinnell disaster.

The sky presented a peculiar aspect, very like that reported before a tornado.

"DUBUQUE, June 22.—Word was received at 10 o'clock to-night here of a heavy wind and rain storm along the lines of the Illinois Central railroad west during the afternoon, with great damage at Independence. The wires were all prostrated, and to-night not one is working, and it is impossible to get communication with any side. Such facts as we learn were brought in by Conductor Keopers and some of the passengers.

The storm struck Independence a little before 5 o'clock, and wrought great destruction. Fences were torn up, barns wrecked, houses leveled, and trees uprooted. The windmill of the Illinois Central road was blown down and many houses and buildings unroofed. The depot of the Burlington and Cedar Rapids railroad is said to be a wreck. The roof of Fonda's store was taken off, and also the roof of R.O'Brien's. One of the livery stables was unroofed, and one report says the bridge across the river was injured.

At Waterloo the wind was terrific, but it is not known that much damage of a serious nature was done. Probably the tents of the military encampment are ruined. The storm struck Dubuque about 6 o'clock, but no special damage was done.

GUITEAU'S CASE.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—President Arthur granted a hearing to-day to Dr. Beard, of New York; Dr. Godding, of the National Insane Asylum, and Miss Chevalier, of Boston, who were accompanied by the Rev. Dr. Hicks, upon the question of further investigation as to Guitau's mental condition. The interview lasted three-quarters of an hour, and the President gave them a patient hearing, but volunteered no indications of his own feelings upon the subject. They presented letters from several eminent English and American physicians, and from Wendell Phillips, all making the same suggestions practically. Ex-Surgeon General Hammond also had sent a letter saying the man was undoubtedly insane, but advising that he be hung anyway.

There seems to be some chance for a postponement of the execution of Guitau. The general opinion here is that the array of eminent names among those who have volunteered the opinion in the strongest terms that Guitau is insane, will weigh a great deal with the Attorney General, to whom the papers have all been referred by the President.

TEXAS SIFTINGS.

ST. LOUIS, June 22.—The Republican special from Dallas, Texas, says news reached that city to-night that yesterday morning the dead bodies of four men were found in Elm Bottom, Benton county, between Louisville and Pilot Point. Two were hanging by the neck to a tree, and the other two were on the ground with bullet holes in them. They were not identified, but were supposed to be horse or cattle thieves.

FIRE RECORD.

A Loss of $60,000 on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company by a Blaze at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, June 22.—The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway company suffered a loss of $60,000 by fire this morning. The repair shop in the Menomonee Valley was the scene of the conflagration. Several passenger coaches, one express car, and fifteen freight cars were totally destroyed with the exception of the wheels. The building, which is said to be fireproof, was damaged by the heat to the extent of $25,000. The loss on rolling-stock was $28,000, and the damage to stock, tools, etc., was about $7,000. The carpenters employed lost fifty kits of tools, but the company will make good this misfortune. The whole property of the road is covered by a sort of blanket insurance policy, issued by a syndicate of American and English capitalists but each article is given a separate valuation—not over two thirds the original cost. The total policy carried by the St. Paul Company is $6,000,000, and on this the premium last year was but $30,000 or one-half of 1 per cent. At the first of January the premium was raised to $60,000, against which the management rebelled, and for three weeks the road was entirely without insurance. The origin of the fire cannot be ascertained. The flames had made such a start when discovered by the watchman that nothing could be saved. There had been no work done in the shop after 6 o'clock the previous evening, and there was no stove or furnace in use. There is consequently a general belief that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

CHURCH CONCERNS.

MILWAUKEE, June 22.—The trouble in the Episcopal Diocesan Council was settled to-day. Bishop Welles made quite a lengthy address on the subject, which was looked upon by the dissenting factions as conciliatory, and peace again reigns in the tents of the righteous. The last session of the council was held this afternoon. The following diocesan officers were chosen for the ensuing year: Re-elected Bishop, the Right Rev. Edward Randolph Welles, S. T. B.; Secretary of Council, the Rev. Charles L. Mallory; Assistant Secretary, the Rev. S. G. Young, Chippewa Falls; Register of the Diocese, the Rev. Erastus Spalding, D. D.; Treasurer of the council, Charles P. Jones, Milwaukee; Treasurer of the Board of Missions, Charles P. Jones, Milwaukee; Treasurer of the trustees of funds and property, David Ferguson, of Milwaukee; Treasurer of the fund for aged and infirm clergy, David Ferguson, Milwaukee; Treasurer of the prayer-book fund, C. P. Jones, Milwaukee. To the standing committee were added Messrs. E. P. Brockway, D. G. Hooker, of Milwaukee, and Walter M. Wells, of Delavan.

A CALDWELL TRAGEDY.

CALDWELL, Kan., June 22.—Two men, supposed to be cowboys from Indian Territory, started a disturbance in the Red-Light saloon here to-day, and the city marshal, George Brown, went in to arrest them. While attempting to disarm one of the ruffians the other drew a revolver and shot Brown through the head, scattering his brains all over the floor. Before an alarm could be given the desperadoes mounted their horses and started for Indian Territory. A pursuing party was immediately raised, but so far the murderers have not been captured.

WISCONSIN GRAND TEMPLE.

GREEN BAY, June 22.—The Temple of Honor procession this morning was large and attractive. A heavy shower about noon interrupted with the programme, but it afterwards cleared up, and about 400 ladies and gentlemen boarded the steamer Brooklyn, and took a short ride down the river, returning to Depere and the Driving Park, where they took dinner. Col. J. A. Watrous, Grand State Templar, delivered an address. The Brooklyn then returned to the city. A reception and ball was held in the evening at Klause hall.

Geo. Meredith, Jersey City, writes: "THE SPRING BLOSSOM you sent me has had the happiest effect on my daughter; her head aches and depression of spirits have vanished. She is again able to go to school, and is as lively as a cricket. I shall certainly recommend it to all my friends." Price 50 cents, trial bottles 10 cents.

Congressman Williams on River and Harbor Improvements.

Saturday, June 17, 1882. On the bill (H. R. No. 6212) making appropriations for the construction, repair and preservation of certain works on rivers and harbors, and for other purposes. Mr. Williams, of Wisconsin, said: MR. SPEAKER: Though living in the southeastern portion of our State, somewhat remote from this proposed improvement, I am by no means unfamiliar with the facts involved in this proposition. I have repeatedly been present before committees where engineers have presented maps, plans and estimates of this work; and, sir, the "A" in the alphabet of this whole question is the answer which engineering skill can give to another question: namely: Can these spring floods be held back and stored in the great natural reservoirs located by the headwaters of the Mississippi and its tributaries, and controlled and delivered when wanted and as wanted in the Mississippi during its lower stages, so as to make navigation practicable and continuous during the entire season on that great thoroughfare of commerce? In response to that question they have given us facts, figures and estimates as to the amount of rain-fall, the extent of watersheds, the loss by evaporation, and the quantity, the volume, velocity, and number of cubic feet in the channel, the construction of gates and dams, and the amount of water which can be delivered at St. Paul by this plan. And so far as I know the answer has been unanimous that the plan is entirely feasible.

Now, if these engineers be incompetent, or if they are corrupt, then we are all at their mercy. But taking this for granted, then what have we in this appropriation and in this proposition? Without indulging in any of the literatures about the "free and boundless West," you have continuous river navigation from St. Paul, the next Chicago of the Northwest. You touch the competing point of river and rail carriage between the Mississippi and the great continental lines now pushing through the mountains westward to the Pacific. You have here practically, effectively, and just to all interests the great regulator of trans-continental freight. It is no play of the imagination to say that this improvement reaches and these trunk lines traverse a mighty empire.

Sir, if formerly we dealt in the vastness only, we deal in that no more. No spot on the earth to-day is developing more rapidly or being peopled more speedily than this very section. Nowhere in the world are capital and commerce so rapidly accumulating. Years ago I spoke and voted for the improvement of the mouth of the Mississippi, and I am not yet convinced that that was a mistake, nor have I seen cause to regret it: on the contrary I think I see a growing commerce there in consequence of that improvement.

We have all been looking for engineering skill to give us some plan upon which the great interests of the Mississippi Valley may unite in a practical and prudent manner to improve this great thoroughfare from the mouth to the source. And if engineers have made no mistake this plan goes forward to success so far as the Upper Mississippi is concerned; for in this very bill $8,000,000 are included for the improvement of the southern portion. I am not sufficiently informed to say whether this be just or wise; but if it be, will take $5,000,000 and deny $3,000,000 north, conceded both to be feasible and prudent?

But it is said private interest will be benefited when a railway company projects a line of road through any section of the country: the first thing considered is whether individual interests will be benefited, and whether manufactures and commerce will spring up on the line. If there is no commerce, no railroad is needed. Precisely so with a national highway; the benefiting of private interests can never be the primary object of such an undertaking, but if benefit results incidentally, may not the policy be as sound with a river as with a railroad? If sound and judicious, these commercial bonds will bind the North and South more firmly together than mere statute law can do.

A Horrible Beast in a Sewer.

One of the most remarkable incidents that has yet come to light—or rather to darkness—in North St. Louis is recorded, and although the hero in the case escaped with his life, he is not particularly anxious to go on any more exploring expeditions, even when they are in the interest of home comforts and requirements. Billy Prant is a well known meat-shop keeper, doing business on Ninth street, near St. Louis avenue. He resides at Elliot and Sullivan avenues, and the Rocky Branch sewer carries away the offal and refuse of the locality. For some time Mr. Prant has had trouble with his sewerage, and the other afternoon he took his younger brother with him to investigate matters. The sewer is a natural one, and large enough to allow a wagon with a double team to drive through it. From the surface the depth is something over twenty feet, and a rope and a ladder was brought into requisition. Mr. Prant descended through the main hole, which was barely large enough to allow of his descent. He had scarcely entered the sewer when he heard a rushing through the rushing stream of water and offal, which sounded as one might imagine the breaking out of a menagerie, and by the uncertain light he saw plunging toward him a monster dog, with eyes bloodshot and emitting sparks of phosphorescent fire. The animal was about two and a half feet high, and was heavy set, of a bloodhound species with a crossing of mongrel blood, and probably weighed as much as a deer or a elk. He was howling madly, and his white, gleaming fangs were bared in a manner which evidently meant business. The beast was covered with short white and black hair, and was endowed with other characteristics which were peculiarly interesting and worthy of research. Mr. Prant, however, remembered an important end of the ladder, and, after breaking the paralysis of fear, he moved up the rungs as quickly as possible, and not a moment too soon, leaving the beast howling fiercely at the foot, and expressing its rage in canine shrieks, which were fairly blood-curdling. The younger Prant heard the noise below, and felt the ladder shaking violently, and his heart stood still until his brother appeared in daylight, looking blanched and agitated. Mr. Prant got back to terra firma, and postponed investigations of that nature. Mr. J. Kurtzelow, a gentleman who is particularly well posted in matters in that locality, expressed his opinion that the dog must have been carried into the sewer when a pup, and had lived there all of its life. It was too large even to get in through any man-hole, and as for its getting out at any time, that is simply absurd. The only exit is by way of the river, and the animal would be drowned instantly if he ever attempted to get out that way.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Haunted Me.

Debt, poverty and suffering haunted me for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which I did not good. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have been sick a day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost.—A Workingman.

THE Rev. F. O. Morris tells of a remarkable friendship that existed on a farm near Leipzig between a cat and a chicken. The four-footed companion of the bird was almost constantly with her favorite, and guarded it from every danger. When the chicken grew up the cat still remained on friendly terms with it; and when the poultry were summoned for feeding, puss always attended and would not permit any of the fowls to approach till her favorite hen had first satisfied her appetite, after which they were allowed to feed unmolested. Bishop Stanley mentions a case of a poor little kitten whose mother had been killed, taking up its abode with some fowls and their young, and becoming so friendly with them that sometimes it might be seen playfully catching at their feet, as if about to bite them, while they playfully pecked at their singular companion in return. Sometimes the kitten would hide behind a bush or shrub, and then, unexpectedly springing into the midst of them, without their displaying any fear, would purr and rub against their sides. One particular hen, however, was the kitten's special favorite, and every day she would accompany it to its nest, and lie down outside to wait for its reappearance.

German Emigration.

THERE is abundant reason why these people should come to us, and very little why they should remain where they are. There is no doubt that one of all of them have a natural attachment for the land in which they have been born and reared, or that they will shake the dust of Germany off their feet with many and bitter regrets; for the Germans are not only a home-keeping people, but patriotism is a very vital force with them. But if they are patriotic they are also practical, and if Germany makes life harder than it need be, and new careers can be found elsewhere under better auspices, their children will smother their compunctions now as sometimes, and will go where they can have a living chance for themselves and for their children.

THE kind of government to which they have been subjected from time immemorial has always pressed heavily upon the Germans of all classes in life, but especially upon the commonalty, and it would seem that the present Imperial German presser harder than any other kind of government that the Germans do not need to be ruled with a particularly heavy hand, our experience with them abundantly proves. We have no more industrious, frugal, law-abiding, orderly, and useful class of foreign-born citizens than those which come to us from the land where Bismarck's policy of iron and blood apparently render life scarcely worth having. It is the corruption that these emigrants who are hurrying to our shores are chiefly flying from, and if they keep hurrying at the present rate, it will soon become a question with the powers that be whether something must not be done to modify the system which compels so large a portion of the male population to pass the best years of their lives under arms, or else to check emigration. It certainly seems feasible to devise some method of preventing the military service from being the bugaboo that it now is, while maintaining the military establishment at its proper strength for the meeting of certain contingencies which are exceedingly likely to occur in the near future. These contingencies would not have their present importance had the men at the head of German affairs refrained from pushing their enemies of 1870 and 1871 to the wall, but they could not resist the temptation to laminate the French to the uttermost, and now they are paying the very dearest possible price for their lack of generosity and statesmanlike forecast. The modification of the military system, however, so as to give the young men of Germany some kind of reasonable pretext for staying at home instead of flying to America, does not seem to occur to the rulers of Germany; while they have been coddling their brains for a good while past to put some check on emigration. In this, however, they have thus far had little or no success, and are not likely to have except by the adoption of stringent measures such as even so bold and unscrupulous a man as Bismarck would be apt to hesitate about proposing. Meanwhile the tide of emigration is steadily and with increasing force setting America-ward, and we are receiving accessions to our population which we can well afford to heartily welcome, and which are certain to add materially to our wealth and our strength.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Old-Time Sleighting Parties.

THERE is a vast difference between the sleighting parties of to-day and the sleighting parties of old times. Then they had but one sleigh. It was a square box, very heavy, and the back of the sleigh was higher than the head when seated, over which a coverlet was thrown. The sleigh was so heavy that two horses were required to draw it. The sleighs were painted yellow and were called the "family sleigh." They would not accommodate more than two persons. Then they frequently had good sleighing for a couple of months, and sleighing parties were the order of the day. The farm wagon-body was placed on the runners of the wood-sled, a lot of straw was put on the bottom, and the young men and women seated themselves on the straw. The father always accompanied the party. They would drive to some tavern, (there were no hotels then) when the first thing in order was to get a glass of "flip." Flip was simply cream beer, which was served up in large mugs. Every landlord had an iron rod about two feet long, with a ball on the end about the size of a walnut, which was heated red-hot and run in every glass of beer, which heated it and made it foam. This was called "flip." After drinking this the music struck up, and there was a dance, and those who did not desire to dance played games of different kinds.

Lively Time on the Railroad.

SOME people seem born with a faculty of raising the ancient masculine juvenile. They get folks who are minding their own business and merely want peace and quiet, into all sorts of scrapes. The faculty is peculiarly developed in the commercial tourist usually referred to as a drummer. He's the man who makes love to all the pretty servant girls in the hotels and gets their notions so high that they won't notice the porters, and it makes the latter want to "slug" the drummers. One of this class of gentlemen was at an up-country railway station and discovered, while waiting for a train, a wasp's nest. An idea at once struck him. He reached the train, and the wasp gotting hurt we don't know. Probably the wasps were dormant with cold. But at any rate, he got that nest down and tied it to the tail of a large yellow dog that was fooling round the depot. The dog started to run and that so stirred up the wasps that they sent a courier out to investigate, and as he did so in a manner so disagreeable to the dog that he only ran the harder and made three wild circuits of the depot. The train meanwhile came, and as trains don't stop at country stations it was just starting as the dog came round the third time. Wild with pain, the dog leaped aboard the train and plunged into a crowded car, just as the brakeman shut the door. The poor brute got beneath a seat and tried to curl up. The car was hot and it wound up the wasps and they came out in that seat jumped up so hard they nearly stove holes in the roof, and they they they clawed at their legs was a caution. Everybody looked. Then others became interested. And the dog started on the run through the car. The wasps went for him and everybody in the car. A wild scene took place. Men cursed and clawed wildly. Women got up on the seats and danced—and the dog, while everybody thought to be mad, tore up and down the aisle, howling. The conductor came in, thinking the people insane. He promptly joined the show. As the train was flying, folks couldn't jump off. No mad-house ever saw such a scene. There was profanity enough to sink a ship, and the brakeman gazing in at the door said it beat anything he ever saw in a variety show. Finally the conductor stopped the train, folks got out, and the car was cleared of wasps and dog. But the passengers didn't get over it. They were an awful mad set, and occasionally after they got started again a man would find a stray wasp in his trousers and rise and yell. They talked of suing the railroad, and if they could have got that drummer his death would have been frightful. But he had gone on a train the other way.—Boston Post.

The Development of Taste.

IN the natural growth of the world, taste has been rapidly developed, and the people of all nations are now producing each its own peculiar and wonderful treasures. Who can remember or describe them? Who can tell the extent of the riches or the beauty of the golden, jeweled ornaments now admired and worn by a thousand million people? What pen can describe all that is seen in cultivated gardens and parks adorned with trees, shrubs, plants, and flowers? Where can we learn, in books or elsewhere, the names of all that is beautiful that blossoms from the whole earth; all that is beautiful that the brush produces on canvas; all that the weaver's shuttle and loom produce; all that the skilled hands of the carver on wood, stone, and marble produce; all that the combined colors of the rainbow have produced, as shown in fabrics, of silk and satin, and cotton and wool; all that is beautiful in architecture, and in the adornments of the world's most renowned cathedrals, and beautiful in all its famous gilded palaces? But life is too short to search out and see all that is beautiful. We can only get a glimpse, now and then, at some of the world's greatest treasures. The most favored season for such sight-seeing is Christmas.—The Independent.

Modern Courtship.

THIS is a modern courtship in a nutshell: The lights were so bright that they seemed garish, and the parlor of the McWishes was radiant in upholstery of the past decade. Eulalie, the pride of the family, just making preparations for celebrating her nineteenth birthday, Old Bullion making an evening call, "My dear Miss McWish. There is indeed a disparity in our ages. You have youth and beauty. I, years and wealth. But I trust there can be some reciprocity between us?" "Indeed, my dear Mr. Bullion, wealth is not to be despised. Neither is old age—a delicate health." The last clause in an undertone. A kiss that was like the rattling of an old parchment against a satin cushion closed that bargain. We'll bet the old man outlives her.—New Haven Register.

HISTORICAL.

THE Spanish Celts raised temples and sang hymns of praise to death. In a single day, at the dedication of the Colosseum by Titus, 5,000 animals perished.

AGUSTUS solemnly degraded an overthrown statue of Neptune because his fleet had been wrecked.

THE favorite maxim of Philip II. of Spain was: "It is better not to reign at all than to reign over heretics."

TOWARD the end of the eighth century the sale of slaves beyond their native provinces was in most countries forbidden.

AT the beginning of the fourteenth century the church for the first time gave permission for the dissection of human bodies.

MERCURY, the friend of Charles XII, exclaimed, the instant of the king's death: "The play is over; let us go to supper."

MARCUS AURELIUS, by compelling gladiators to fight with blinded swords, rendered the combats for a time comparatively harmless.

SOME troubles seem to be brewing in Cashmere, the Maharajah of which has been suspected of intriguing with the Afghans and Russians.

IN the year 630 A. U. C., Caius Gracchus caused a law to be made supplying the poor with corn at a price that was little more than nominal.

SIR FRANCIS DRAKE called his own plunder of towns in the West Indies, and destruction of ships on the sea, "singing the beard of the King of Spain."

AT one porcelain manufactory in Japan the clay pipes have been worked for more than 2,000 years, and the deposits seem scarcely more than scraped.

ON the death of the Emperor Otho, who is said to have killed himself to avoid being the cause of a civil war, some of his soldiers, filled with grief and admiration, killed themselves before his corpse.

AT the time of the introduction of postage stamps by Sir Rowland Hill, he estimated that the increase of letters posted on the 14th of February, was not less than half a million throughout the United Kingdom.

THE triple wall which formerly surrounded Constantinople, and which finally fell before Mahomet II., formed an almost impregnable defence. The present Sultan must have its value in mind, as he is having his own palace and garden surrounded by three similar walls.

WHEN Pope Pius IX. died in 1878, he bequeathed to his successor the conflict with Russia, defeat of the European ultranationalists, opposition against Italy and Germany. The situation has now changed. Russia and Germany desire peace with the Vatican. The relations of the Pope to Italy and France are not greatly changed, although the former treats the Vatican as a municipal affair, and the French government has drifted into almost open hostility with it.

These Strange Peculiarities.

THERE are several marked peculiarities and coincidences in the year. If you add the first two figures together the sum is 19, and you add the last two the sum will be 10. Then if you add the two sums together the result will be 19. Now, if you divide the third figure by the fourth you will have 4. The fourth figure in the year is 2, and two times 4 is 8. See? Then if you add together the first and last figures you have 3; and three times 2 is 6. Now, then: six times 8 is 48, and five times 6 is 30. So if you subtract the first figure of the year from the second you will have 7; but if you subtract the third figure from the fourth you will have a lonely time explaining how you do it. But 7 in 11 you can't, and twice 1 is 2, and once 2 is 2, too. These interesting and instructive combinations of figures of this year may be carried out by an ingenious person to an almost indefinite extent.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Errors of Collection.

"He blew out his brains after bidding his wife good-by with a gun"—an extract from a Connecticut paper—is pleasing; and that is a very fine Irish flavor in the Ulster epithet. "Erected to the memory of John Phillips accidentally shot as a mark of affection by his brother." But the gem of the collection is an advertisement from an English paper: "A piano for sale by a lady about to cross the Channel in an oak case with carved legs."—Saturday Review.

How It Works.

Everything bears hard upon the poor. The rich man who puts nothing into the contribution box, Sunday morning, is at once supposed to have left his pocket-book in his other trousers; but the poor man who has but one suit of clothes can't get off so easily.

A Cough, Cold, or Sore Throat should be stopped.

Neglect frequently results in an incurable Lung Disease or Consumption. BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES do not disorder the stomach like cough syrups and balms, but act directly on the inflamed parts, allaying irritation, give relief in Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Catarrh, and the Throat troubles which Singers and Public Speakers are subject to. For thirty years Brown's Bronchial Troches have been recommended by physicians, and all ways give perfect satisfaction. Having been tested by wide and constant use for nearly an entire generation, they have attained well-merited rank among the few staple remedies of the age. Sold at 25c a box everywhere. mar17d-tue-thur-fri-3wly

A POPULAR TONIC

No preparation ever introduced to the American public, for the relief and cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Debilitated Constitutions, Fevers, and all the Lungs or Consumption in the incipient or advanced stages of the disease, has ever met with the indorsement of physicians or patients as the celebrated "Tola, Rock and Rye." The repeated and continued sales of the article prove it to be the best and most reliable remedy in the market. Letters and testimonials from every quarter of the country, attesting the stimulating, tonic and healing effects, are in possession of the proprietors, and can be added to convince the most skeptical reader of its intrinsic virtues. Further commendation is unnecessary and superfluous, as a trial of this article, having a pleasant taste and agreeable flavor, will satisfy all those who are afflicted or pining away with pulmonary weakness or the relief to be secured by the use of Tola, Rock and Rye.—Chicago Times. dec12dcdm
